1906

We find in nearly every one a desire to know something of the history and lives of his ancestors.

Therefore, at the request of relatives, for the benefit of this and future generations of the Treichler family, and the preservation of these records and few historical facts, the compiler has them put in print.

The genealogy from Daniel Treichler to the present time contains the name of every member of the family by right of birth or marriage.

We are indebted to Aunt Elizabeth Baer for much of the early history of this family.

Thanks are extended to the relatives who so kindly sent in their family records.

HISTORY AND RECORD.

About the year 1730 three brothers by the name of Treichler emigrated from Germany to America.

One settled in Berks County, Pa., another near Pittsburg and the third near York, Pa.

Following is a brief history of the last mentioned brother and his descendents:

It was about the year 1755, during the war between British and French colonists, that this Treichler and his son John, who was then about twelve years of age, were employed to drive a team for the purpose of supplying the soldiers with provisions. While thus engaged the father was taken sick and his son immediately set off with him for their home. They journeyed on foot until the father's strength became exhausted, when the son procuring a small rowboat, proceeded to row his father on the river, presumably the Susquehanna. But the sick man sank rapidly, and before they could reach home, died in the boat. The distress and grief of the poor boy can well be imagined.

He found three men, who helped him bury his father. After this sad task was performed, he was obliged to find his way home alone. After this, young John, with the assistance of his mother and sisters, carried on the farm. One sister was married to Martin Baer. They moved to Waterloo, Ont. Another sister married a man by the name of Life, and of the rest of the family we have no knowledge.

On the 21st day of December, 1760, John Treichler was married to Miss Elizabeth Leupsin, by whom he had ten children, as follows: John, born Oct. 21, 1761; Barbara, born Aug. 25, 1763; Martin, born Dec. 11, 1764; Anna, born Feb. 19, 1766; Henry, born 1768; Mary, born December, 1770; Magdalena, born April 2, 1773; Daniel, born July 1, 1774; Samuel, who died young, was born Oct. 24, 1776; Elizabeth, born 1779. And soon after the mother died.

In 1781 the father, John Treichler, was married again to a widow from Alsace, Germany, by the name of Neiswanger, by whom he had two daughters, Catherine, born in the year 1782, and was married to Henry Grove. They had two sons, Daniel and Henry. They all lived and died in Lancaster County, Pa. The second daughter, Salome, was born in the year 1784. She married John Strickler of York County, Pa. They had three children: John, Sarah, and Lydia. John Strickler, Jr., was married in the year 1841 to Harriet Ruby. Four children were born unto them: Frederick, George, Sarah and Mary.

John Strickler, Jr., died Jan. 3, 1890. His wife, Harriet Ruby, died in September, 1850.

Frederick, son of John and Harriet Strickler, was married in the year 1877 to Amanda G. Hoke. One son was born to them, but died soon after birth.

George, son of John and Harriet Strickler, is married to Elizabeth Musser. Ten children were born unto them: Samuel and Susan twins, Fanny, Harriet, Mary, Michael, Lizzie, Sarah, John and Annie. Michael, Sarah and Annie are not living.

Samuel Strickler, son of George and Elizabeth, is married to Sallie Strickler. They have one daughter.

Susan Strickler, daughter of George and Elizabeth, is married to Howard Hoke. They have one son and one daughter.

Mary Strickler, daughter of John and Harriet, is still single and shares the home farm with her brother Frederick at Stony Brook, York County, Pa.

Sarah, daughter of Salome Treichler and John Strickler, was married to John Houser. They had nine children: John, Henry, Albert, Winfield, Mary, Sarah, Martha, Eliza and Matilda. All have passed away except Matilda, Martha and Winfield.

Matilda is married to Emanuel Strickler. They have quite a large family of children, some of whom are married.

Winfield Houser, the youngest of the family, has three sons and four daughters.

Lydia Strickler, daughter of Salome Treichler and John Strickler, was married to John Strickler. They had three sons: Henry, Reuben and Michael. After Henry's marriage he lived in Waterloo, Ont., where he also died a few years ago. Reuben also died in Canada. Michael and his family are living in York County, Pa.

John, son of John and Elizabeth Treichler, never married. He died in York County, Pa., and is buried in Strickler's burying ground, near Stony Brook, Pa. A simple stone, with the name Johannes Treichler, marks his grave.

Barbara, the eldest daughter of John and Elizabeth Treichler, was married to Peter Good. They lived and died in York County, Pa. They had no children.

Peter Good had a son, Peter, by a former marriage, who, with his family, moved to Erie County, N. Y., near Williamsville, where many of his descendants now live.

Martin Treichler was married to Barbara Fitz. They had three sons: John, Baltzar and Jacob.

Anna Treichler was married to Abraham Schoock. They had two children, who died in infancy.

Henry Treichler died when about twenty years of age in York County, Pa. He was very pious, read many religious works and it is said he sometimes prayed all night. His mind and health became effected and he died of consumption. Before the close of his life he had yet a great struggle to pass through before he could fully overcome the flesh and become reconciled to the will of God. Just before he passed away he called his brothers and sisters around him speaking to them thuswise: "Come children, I see heaven opening unto me," etc., and thus he passed away in the full assurance of a glorious resurrection.

Mary Treichler was married about the year 1796 to John Miller, who was born in York County, Pa., Jan. 20, 1760. They moved to Canada in the year 1802 and settled near Chippewa, Ont., preferring to live under a monarchical form of government. And they were ever loyal to the King. Only once was their loyalty doubted. It was at the time of the war between the British and the Americans in 1812. Those were trying times to the inhabitants who dwelt on the frontier, bordering the Niagara River, where battles were fought and British soldiers were liable to pass at any time on their way to and from the different forts. A decree was issued that all those who were true and loyal to the King should, as a sign of their loyalty, erect a pole in front of their residences from which a silk handkerchief should float. All who did not comply strictly to these orders were probably considered enemies. One day word came to the Miller family that the soldiers were coming their way. So Aunt Mary Miller and Aunt Mollie hastily hoisted a tablecloth. When the soldiers came along, instead of a silk handkerchief, they beheld floating in the breeze a tablecloth. This provoked them, for it was not according to orders, and they halted to inquire the meaning. Not being satisfied with explanations, they seized Uncle Miller and took him along with them, threatening to imprison him. His plea was that he had nothing to do with the matter, and said it was the women who put out the tablecloth. So they let him go. Of course, the women were innocent in their intentions. Perhaps they thought the larger the flag the better.

Dear, blue-eyed Uncle Ben, he fell and struck his side on a step, which caused a tumor to form. He died after much suffering, which was borne with patience.

Daniel Treichler, Sr., died Dec. 1, 1860, at his son Samuel's, near Sanborn, N. Y., buried at Shawnee, N. Y.

Catherine Schroll Treichler was born in York County, Pa., March 4, 1787, died May 12, 1862, at Samuel's, near Sanborn, N. Y., buried at Shawnee, N. Y.

Daniel Treichler, Sr., and family moved from York County, Pa., in April, 1833, and settled on a farm about one and one-half miles south of Sanborn, Niagara County, N. Y., on what is called the Ward Road. They moved in wagons and were on the way sixteen days.

Grandfather Daniel Treichler, Sr., was an honest, upright, industrious man and with the aid of his sons soon had the land cleared and under cultivation. They built a substantial two-story log house, covered with clapboards, with a two-story veranda at the front of the south wing. Here they lived until all were married except Samuel and Benjamin, who sold the old homestead and purchased a farm northeast of Sanborn, where they, their parents and Aunt Mollie spent the remainder of their years, and where Samuel Curtis, a son of Samuel, now resides.

Our grandfather was fond of his pipe, yet it is a remarkable fact that only one of his six sons became a user of tobacco.

Our grandmother was an economical, industrious, little woman and a scrupulously neat housekeeper. No pantry-shelves were ever whiter than hers; no bread and honey ever tasted as good as hers, and how well do we remember the little harvest pears that she always kept in a basket behind the pantry door in their season. How nice and yellow and sweet they were.

How we loved to visit our dear grandmother in her neat, white cap and kerchief; and old great Aunt Mollie, too. How we loved to sit on the big, red chest in the corner of her room, back of the door, and listen with childish enjoyment to the conversation of herself and our parents. But they are gone, and nearly all of their children, and soon we too shall follow. Let us emulate their example of honesty, industry and perseverance and in uprightness of heart, strive to walk in wisdom's ways, for they are paths of peace.

Catherine Schroll Treichler's grandparents came from Germany. She had one sister and six brothers.

The sister's name was Lizzie or Elizabeth. She was married to Henry Hoover. They lived and died in York County, Pa. The brothers were John, Jacob, Daniel, George, Christian and Abram. These brothers and their families moved from York County, Pa., to Ohio, and settled near Bucyrus.

The following poetry was written in German by the senior John Treichler, May 11, 1759:

Wer das Vergängliche thut jener Welt vorziehen,
Und thut um's Irdische sich Tag und Nacht bemühen,
Der hat noch nicht geschmecket die Süßigkeit aus Gott;
Ist wie ein ander Vieh, am wahren Leben todt.
O, wohl dem, wer erkenne, was dorten einst wird werden,
Der kann vergessen bald die Freuden dieser Erden.

Wann sich die blinde Welt in vielen Lüsten weidzt,
Und sich viel Feuer-Holz auf jener Welt bereitet;
So bin ich in mir still, verschmäh' die Freud' der Erden,
Und sinne nach was mir in jener Welt wird werden;
Dort folgt die Freud auf Leid, viel Glück nach den Beschwerden,
Dies soll mir sein ein Trost, so lang ich leb' auf Erden.

Das Kreuz.

Das Kreuz ist meiner Seele Trost,
Weil Jesus d'ran gestorben,
Und mich dadurch vom Tod erlöst,
Sonst wär' ich verdorben.

Ah, wie so manchen Schmerz und Leid
Muß ich allhie durchgehen,
Bis ich durch's Kreuze zubereit,
Um rein vor Gott zu stehen.

Des Schmerzens volle Nägelmal,
Die Händ' und Füß' durchstoßen,
Jesus am bitteren Kreuzespfahl
Hat mir mein Herz gebrochen.

Zu lieben ihn mein Leben lang
Diemeil ich leb' auf Erden,
So werd' nach langem Kreuzesdrang,
Mit ihm verherrlicht werden.

Wer irdische Güter besitzt, kann sich selber nicht besitzen ;
und wer sich selber besitzt, kann Gott nicht besitzen, und wer
Gott besitzt, wohnet in seinem Eigenthum.

O, wie selig ist der, der also ist heimkommen und seiner Mutter wieder im Schooße ruhete ; der ist wohl gefahren, der seinen üblen Sitz verlassen ; der ist wohl gessen, der allzeit das Bitterste genossen.
